The January circular of Jas. McMillan & Co., fur buyers of Minneapolis, says: "The report from the coming January London sale is that the offerings are enormous, and of some articles two or three times what there were in the January sale a year ago. With scarcely any trade in this country and hard times in most parts of Europe it means lower prices at the coming sale for a great many of the principal articles. On a few articles of which the collections are never very large, prices may be sustained or advanced somewhat; but the quantities of the articles that will hold their own will be small. We have reduced our prices materially on mink and muskrat, and after the sale we think that we shall have to reduce mink and some other kinds still more. Mink is the poorest selling article this year, even at the decline. Skunk is at the best, but with larger receipts of skunk as the season advances, we feel sure that with general business so poor skunk will have to be bought lower."

The business meeting of the fire brigade held which was announced for Friday last did not take place. It will be held to-morrow night.

THE mayor and council of Edmonton, the town clerk, and the editors of the Times and Bulletin were entertained at supper on Monday night, after the conclusion of the first sitting of the new council, by F. Marriaggi of the Alberta hotel. Ample justice was done to the oysters, turkey and other items in the generous bill of fare. The health of the host was proposed by Mayor McCauley, in a complimentary speech, and replied to by Mr. Marriaggi in suitable terms. Other toasts and speeches followed, coupled with many reminiscences of early days in Edmonton, the mayors and three of the councillors dating from their first acquaintance with the place from the seventies. All the speakers expressed the fullest satisfaction with their choice of Edmonton as an abiding place, and their confidence that in the near future it would be the leading city of the Northwest.

THE C. P. R. rate to carlers from Edmonton to the Winnipeg hospital will be $34.00. THREE of M. Maloney's teams left for Saddle lake to-day with Indian department flour.

AN Indian of the Stony Plain reserve reports having visited Dan Macrae's shanty on the river near the reserve and finding the place deserted. There were no tracks in the snow showing recent occupation. Evidently the occupant had not intended to be absent long when he left as he had started to make bread, and left it unfinished.

JOHN Cameron received a telegram on Tuesday morning from New York giving the results of the January London fur sales of the H. B. Co. held on Monday. As compared with the sales of last January, mink rat, first class, shows a rise of 7 per cent; second class a drop of 7 per cent; thirds and fourths a drop of 12 per cent. Beaver shows a decline of 15 per cent. These declines are not greater than have been generally anticipated. Forty five thousand beaver skins were sold in the one day, and 600,000 rats.

At a meeting of the directors of the Edmonton electric light company held on Tuesday evening last, the managers Alex. Taylor, resigned, and Messrs D. R. Fraser, J. Kelly and A. D. Osborne were appointed joint managers, to hold office until November next. Mr. Cameron was engaged as engineer, and Jas. Bell as electrician by the new managers. Last night was the first run under the new management. Coal will be supplied by Mr. Brabant, who continues the business of Bass & Brabant. No coal will be used. Mr. Wells the late engineer goes east to-morrow.

G. M. VOLDENG and Andrew Swenson, delegates from the Red River Valley in Minnesota, arrived last week to look up the advantages of the Edmonton district, particularly with a view of getting at the truth as to the winter climate. They are more than satisfied with the advantages offered by the district for mixed farming and are highly pleased with the winter climate as well, which they consider superior to that of Minnesota. They represent a large Norwegian settlement in Minnesota, some of the members of which are anxious to find new homes. They go to Fort Saskatchewan to-day and leave for home on to-morrow's train.

FURTHER reports from the London fur sales show that black bear is 17 1/2 per cent lower, red fox 7 1/2 per cent lower and lynx 35 per cent lower than in March last. Beaver is 12 1/2 per cent lower than in January last. The drop in bear and lynx will be felt seriously by traders in this part of the country as these furs form a large proportion of the total trade. The above are quotations from C. M. Lumsden's & Co's sales now in progress, received by R. S. Lord. Although the fall in price is great since last year at this time, the fall since the November sales is not very marked, except in lynx which has dropped 12 1/2 per cent since November. The drop in beaver of 2 1/2 per cent since November is a surprise as owing to increasing scarcity, beaver was expected to rise. Red fox shows a rise of 2 1/2 per cent since November and black bear a further drop.

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.

The deplorable condition of affairs in Manitoba, whereby debtors are being absolutely robbed of their property without their creditors being benefited or their debts being paid, has called forth objection from a most unexpected quarter, namely the jobbers' union, comprising most of the wholesale dealers of Winnipeg. On Friday, January 12th, a deputation from the union including Jas. H. Ashdown, president, and most of the leading wholesale men of Winnipeg, interviewed the provincial government to recommend certain changes in the laws respecting debtors and creditors, which would prevent as far as possible a recurrence of the hardships complained of. The Free Press reports as follows:

"The ministers were first addressed by Mr. Ashdown, who stated that the general object of the deputation was to urge the government to amend the debtor and creditor laws, with the view of putting an end to the costly and distressing system of seizure and sale and numerous losses entailed by the law as it stands at present. He especially urged that one exemption law was to force the so amended act to make the exemption absolute, and contended that the present exemption act entirely failed of the object the legislature had in view in enacting it. The law had become simply an instrument for burdening the farmer with ruinous law costs. In closing Mr. Ashdown urged that the power to cover the exempted chattels by mortgage be abolished."

The rest of the deputation agreed with the propositions of Mr. Ashdown, and Mr. Howell, Q. C. argued the legal bearing of the proposed changes and showed that good precedent existed for making them. It seems strange that the men who are certainly the heaviest creditors of the farmers of Manitoba should be the men to demand that the power of forcing the collection of debts beyond a certain point should be abolished. And yet there are sound business reasons for their doing so, based on the same principle of exemptions that is contained in the Magna Charta. The principle of exemptions is that it is not to the general advantage that a person who is in the way of providing his own living should be deprived of the power to do so by being deprived of the tools or requirements of his calling or profession; for if he is he will be reduced to a condition in which he becomes a burden on the public. It is held that it is right that the private creditor should suffer loss which he has risked for profit rather than that through his trying to retrieve what he has risked, the community should have destitute people, for whose destitution it was not responsible. Thrust upon it. It is held to be a state necessity that every individual in the community should be in a position to provide his livelihood. This is the principle of the law which permits an artisan to retain the tools of his trade, or the farmer to retain such portion of his stock and implements as shall enable him to provide his livelihood. The mercantile community transacts its business on the basis of this law, content to lose a portion of its dues in many cases, and in some cases the whole, in order that production may be continued, and business may still be done, even with the debtor, as it could not be were the exemptions not allowed. But there are other classes of the business community who are not content to do business under the exemption law, notably the private bankers and implement dealers. These people avoid the exemption law by taking chattel mortgages and lien notes in security for their accounts. The situation then takes on this shape. The farmer who has only a little property over his exemptions owes the merchant say $500 for the necessities of life supplied from time to time, for which the merchant has a note in security. The merchant knows that this note is not good against the farmer's exemptions; but he is satisfied that the farmer should retain his exemptions in the hope that as times improve he will be able to pay the note, and at any rate he will be able to do business to a greater or less extent with the merchant as time goes on. The same farmer owes say $100 to an implement firm, being the balance due on say a binder which he could have done without, but which he was persuaded to take by the agent under promise of lenient treatment as to payments, and for which he has given a lien note which not only covers the article purchased but also other articles properly covered by the exemption law. Or he may have borrowed say $100 from a private banker, perhaps to make a payment on his land, and the banker has taken a chattel mortgage on the very articles which are exempt from execution on judgments in favor of the merchant's note. If the implement man or banker hands a bundle of these lien notes or chattel mortgages to his solicitor for collection, and says "I want my money" the latter has only one course to take, namely to seize and sell. The result to the merchant is that not only is the power to pay the more necessary debt destroyed, but he is deprived of his customer, not temporarily but permanently, and he has the further satisfaction of knowing that if by any chance the debtor should again get a start in life, if any balance remained unpaid it would be the lien note and chattel mortgage creditors who would have the first pull on it. That this state of affairs should not be satisfactory to the merchants is not strange, nor is it strange that they should demand that an exemption which operates against them should operate against others as well. The justice of their demand is made all the more plain when it is considered how much more necessary it is that the farmer should have credit for articles of food and wearing apparel than for anything else, however desirable it may be. It may be said that the merchant has the same opportunity to secure himself by chattel mortgage as any other dealer. But although this sounds plausible, without going into an argument on the subject, as a matter of fact he has not. And if he could do so there is no sound reason why he should be put to that inconvenience. It would be much more fair to make exemptions absolute; then if the banker or the implement man could not get the security they desired they need not sell implements or advance money, and in most such cases the community as well as the individual would be the gainer. The purchase of implements and borrowing of money beyond the means of the individual is a manifestation of enterprise which under favorable circumstances may assist in the more rapid development of the country, but under unfavorable circumstances, such as exist in Manitoba to-day, certainly retard that development, and cause extreme hardship as well. Enterprise is a good thing but enterprise on a basis of lien notes and chattel mortgages which strip the debtor of his means of livelihood is not enterprise, it is rank foolishness on the one hand if it is not straight robbery on the other, and should not have the sanction of law.

The Winnipeg Commercial says: "A Montreal broker, we are told, estimates that at the lowest figures $30,000,000 in cash has been lost by speculatively inclined Canadians in Chicago and New York during the past year." We have been talked tired for the past five years about the necessity of an influx of enterprise and capital from the United States to secure the development of the vast latent resources of Canada. It seems that the United States has been in need of and received as much Canadian capital during that time as Canada would have been likely under any circumstances to have received from the United States; an amount that if invested with good judgment in Canada would have secured a grand development of resources and besides would have brought the investors profit instead of loss. What Canada needs is not outside assistance in the matter of either enterprise, energy, labor or capital as much as the retaining of her own people and her own money for her own purposes. All that Canada lacks is self confidence, and that will come in time. Desirable though that quality is, it is better to have too little of it than too much.

ST. ALBERT.

Communicated.

An interesting event took place at St. Albert on January 9th, being the marriage of Patrick Kelly to Miss E. E. Agnes, second daughter of J. R. Donovan of St. Albert, which took place in the private chapel of the Bishop's palace at St. Albert.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Leduc, administrator of the diocese.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Minnie E. Donovan and the groom by Mr. W. Chisholm of Edmonton. After the conclusion of the ceremony and the hearing of Mass, the party went to the residence of the bride's father, where a sumptuous meal awaited them, to which all did justice.

After lunch the party engaged in dancing, the singing of Gaelic songs, and other amusements until seven o'clock, when dinner was served, of which about one hundred guests partook. When the tables were cleared dancing was resumed, in which the host and many of his Gungahary friends took part, giving some very fine specimens of the Scottish Highland fling and strathspeys.

The music was furnished by Mr. W. McMillan, and was second to none we ever heard. The party enjoyed themselves until five o'clock on Wednesday morning, when all returned to their respective homes, well pleased with the entertainment. The following is a list of the presents received by the bride: Mrs. J. R. Donovan, mother of the bride, dinner set. Miss Minnie E. Donovan, sister of the bride, water pitcher. Miss Borthia, sister of the bride, half dozen silver spoons. Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Doyval, uncle and aunt of the bride, glass press-dish. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. McDougall, St. Albert, fancy milk pitcher and set of golds. Mrs. McLeod, St. Albert, fancy table cover. Mrs. McDougall, St. Albert, pair of towels. Mr. and Mrs. Bull and J. H. McDougall, St. Albert, large parlor lamp. Rev. Father Dillon, St. Albert, image of the Blessed Virgin in a gold case. W. H. McKenney, St. Albert, night day clock. Mrs. Flynn, St. Albert, ivory pitcher. Mr. Luke Kelly, brother of the bride, bed room set. Mr. Larue, table spread. Mrs. Larue, parlor rocking chair. Mr. M. Connors, rocking chair. Mrs. Tumbly, toilet case. Mr. McNamara, dozen silver spoons. Miss Chisholm, handkerchief case. The Misses Charbonneau, silver card basket. The Misses Page, pair china cups and saucers. Mr. Santer, glass preserve dish. Mr. J. Duggan, bedroom clock. Miss Sarah McDougall, pair of towels. Mr. Chenier, Banff, jewel case. Mr. and Mrs. Noyes, fur mat. Also presents from Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kelly and Miss Burns, Edmonton.

Medicine Hat Times: The perennial wind storm at Lethbridge took a spurt the other night, and blew two coal cars off the track. A veracious old timer says there was about the same time a shower of tomatoes, coal oil barrels, wheel barrows etc., accompanied with pebbles.

Mrs. McDonald, mother of the young man who was recently committed to prison for five years for the manslaughter of a German at Regina, was buried on Friday last. The cause of her death is said to have been grief over the unhappy occurrence.

The westbound C. P. R. express was derailed 60 miles west of Moose Jaw by hard packed snow in a cut during the storm of Jan. 11th.
